4 Key Pillars of the Thrive Channel Program

1. Responsiveness to opportunities (within 24 hours) including quick qualifications in/out to value your time
2. Provides a wide variety of evolving educational resources to our partners
3. A focus on understanding your business to improve Channel alignment
4. A drive to assist our partners in their role as trusted advisors to their clients

New Revenue Opportunity

Dedicated partners are paid residual monthly commissions.

One of Thrive's biggest strengths is our ability to be brought into a customer on an initial pain point, and then from there, expand into providing multiple other services over time within that same account. Thrive's scalable services span up and down the IT stack - giving our partners a true competitive advantage.

Channel Rules of Engagement

- ◆ Ownership of Opportunity -- First to register opportunity has advantage. Thrive will notify that entity of any additional attempts to register and advise the partner they should get in touch with the client. First to execute a contract or service order with a client makes the deal theirs to lose (ink solidifies).
- ◆ Channel Conflict and Overlap -- If there is a close overlap where two partners or one partner / one direct rep receive an opportunity in close proximity, the party that received the opportunity first owns it, however the sales rep may choose to cut in the partner based on the relationship and value they could bring to assisting in closing the deal. This would involve modifying the commission rate in this instance and would require approval from all parties.
- ◆ Channel Etiquette -- As a Supplier, Thrive recognizes that the partner owns the relationship with the client and we are very careful to make sure that line never gets crossed. Partners are copied in on all communication with the end client and of course approval is first required before we engage with the end client in any capacity.
